From the Pastor

- “Families with lots of children are no longer considered examples of generosity, but rather irresponsibility. [Our culture says that] children with severe disabilities are not special angels sent to us by God, but drains on the economy; better that they were not born. And the elderly are burdens. But if we succeed in pushing away everyone who is dependent, then we’re left with ourselves, our ego-centric, sin-rationalizing, defensive, irritable, and vain selves. If we never learn to give until it hurts, till the painful reality that we’re not the center of the universe sinks in, we will fail at marriage, at parenthood, at citizenship, even at simple neighborliness.” William E. May, “On Being a Burden to One’s Family.”

- British filmmaker Michael Whyte has made a documentary on the Carmelite life, focusing on the Monastery of the Most Holy Trinity, a community of sisters who live in London’s North Kensington. The title of the film is No Greater Love. It’s getting rave reviews. The Telegraph refers to it as “The wonderful film that shows what the Church does best.” I like that! It hasn’t been released in the States yet, but I’m looking forward to seeing.

- If you’ve not seen what the Carmelites up in Wyoming plan to do, you should. It is magnificent. They are on their new land. We need the contemplative orders desperately.

- I had a very good meeting with the architect, to look at a more simple design for the church. It struck me that they finished their work and wanted to meet on the 16th, the feast day of our Patroness. I take that as a sign. I’ll show these to the Building Committee first, since I want their advice on several things, and then put them out for the parish by the 1st Sunday of August. I think you will be pleased with the results.

- The capital campaign has $448,830.00 pledged, with $103,378.00 received. This still represents a small minority of the parishioners, but it is going well, thanks to God.
