Catechism on Holy Week

When we consider the reformed Holy Week of the Ven. Pius XII, the dates are useful. The Ordo Hebdomadae Sanctae (Order of Holy Week) of 1955-1956 begins the huge changes in the liturgy, the “battering ram” as Fr. Braga said, against the traditional liturgy. I’ll just abbreviate it as OHS 1956.

One of the first changes had to do with the color of the vestments. In the Missale Romanum 1952 (MR 1952 from here on), violet is used for both the procession and the Mass following. But in the archives of the Commission for the changes, the justification to change the color came from a professor of pastoral theology from a Swiss seminary. He said, “One thing that perhaps might be done...the color red might be restored as was used in the Middle Ages for this solemn procession. The color red recalls the royal purple. In this way the procession is distinguished as something sui generis.”

Several things should be noted about this. First, perhaps red does recall the royal purple, but it is very difficult to see how. In the traditional Roman Rite, red always signified either the blood of martyrdom or the fire of the Holy Ghost, though in the Ambrosian Rite it symbolizes the blood of the Passion.

Second, the assertion that this was the practice in the middle ages turns out to be unproven. There is no evidence for this.

Third, the search for things that are sui generis in the liturgy and then inserting them willy-nilly into the liturgy is a questionable practice.

The use of violet for both the procession and the Mass shows I think, a better connection between the two events of the triumphal procession into Jerusalem, and the fact that He was entering the city in order to suffer, die and be buried. The use of violet therefore, is the better symbolism.

From the Pastor:

- The intention of this week’s holy hour is for all the children and teachers who are returning to school, that the school year would be blessed with much grace for them.

- We should build the whole edifice of our spiritual life around Adoration. We should not hesitate to ask Him to work miracles, now, as He did in Palestine.” (Fr. John Hardon)

- * 8.20 Special Intention by Mary Anderson

- Continuing with the subject of our country, it seems to me that the post Civil War 14th Amendment – not the Amendment itself but with its radical distortion in a series of Supreme Court decisions in the early to mid 20th century, resulted in something called the Incorporation Doctrine which turned the Bill of Rights and the First Amendment in particular on its head. It changed the First Amendment from a restriction on the power of the U.S. Congress over the states, to a grant of unlimited power of the U.S. courts over the states. Instead of the Congress having absolutely no power over the religious policies of the states, the federal courts now have unlimited power over the religious policies of the states. The Incorporation Doctrine may represent the single greatest revolution in our country's history, fundamentally altering the constitutional structure and turning the states from quasi-independent entities into creatures of the federal government and courts; and yet, hardly anyone knows about it. A book called Government by Judiciary, by Raoul Berger, makes a good case for the above statement.

- "After all, it is just a matter of common sense. Mathematics has its principles and its axioms, and anyone who denies them is laughed out of class. Science has its fundamentals upon which it builds, and anyone who cares to flout them, gets no serious consideration from anyone who knows. There are correct rules for thinking, and if people flout them, they are ushered politely to the insane asylum. Does anyone call this tyranny that the teachers of mathematics, science, and logic insist on these fundamentals? Then, why should religion be the one lawless, ruleless, 'unprincipled' thing in the world? Why should it be tyranny for religion to insist on its fundamentals, especially as those fundamentals came from a Divine Teacher and conform in every least detail to man's own inclinations and highest ideals? That isn't tyranny, my dear. That is just plain horse sense.” Fr. Daniel Lord, S.J.

- One of the reasons I went on the Wyoming Catholic College trip was to take a vacation, do an adventure that time is running out for (I’m getting a bit old for this sort of thing), but most of all to make a kind of pilgrimage and offer the whole thing up for all the OLMC parishioners, especially those who struggle to acquire the virtue of purity. I’m writing this on July 27th, so please God I’ll make it back no later than the evening of August 20th.
