On Idolatry

The Pachamama incident at the Vatican in October 2019 was the most egregious case of idolatry anyone has witnessed in a long time. In full view of the whole world, men and women bowed to a literal wooden idol, replacing the Uncreated God with the work of men's hands. However, Pachamama was not a singular case. While there's the "hard" idolatry like

From the Pastor/Press

Pachamama making a return after centuries of dormancy in the Western world, there's also the "soft" idolatry prevalent all around us. We idolize everything from movie stars to sports figures to... our smartphones. We are awash in idolatry. What has caused modern man to become so desperate to make anything other than the Almighty God our god? It begins with something you likely wouldn't suspect: widespread gluttony... the ever-pervasive sin we're happy to ignore. How many homilies have you heard against gluttony? How many men's or women's conferences feature talks on gluttony? The only sin less mentioned than artificial birth control... is gluttony. Suggesting that overindulgent eating is a sin can even lead to accusations of "fat shaming" ... Yet the Church Fathers considered gluttony a root sin which led to many others.

On McElroy's Nomination for the Red Hat

Why does Pope Francis like Bishop McElroy enough to make him a Cardinal? After all, the man has some serious baggage. And the answer to that question can only be ascertained once we understand how important to this pontificate Amoris Laetitia is. Just as Traditionis Custodes was in many ways a clear repudiation of Summorum Pontificum, so too is Amoris Laetitia a repudiation of large parts of Veritatis Splendor... Pope Francis has systematically dismantled the John Paul II Institute in Rome and replaced numerous professors and leadership... with theologians who are largely proportionalists in moral theology and strong supporters of a more "progressive" agenda... The various red hats... given out... in the U.S. are primarily... about moral theology and the revolution in the post-conciliar theological guild on the topic of human sexuality. People tend to focus on the great controversies surrounding liturgy in the post-conciliar era... But ... the deepest, most important, most contentious, most divisive, and most destructive debates surrounded moral theology, especially after Humanae Vitae and the massive dissent from it [which] followed.

On Transgender Madness

Cycling's governing body... says new rules have been brought in following "new scientific studies"(1) ... after being brought into the spotlight by... Emily Bridges, one of cycling's most high-profile transgender competitors.

Elsewhere we learn of "Emily" Bridges:

She raced in male events while transitioning, including finishing 43rd out of 45 riders in [an] elite men's race... [and] next to last in the Welsh Championship, a 12km lap behind the winner.(2)

1. Unknown is whether these "new scientific studies" include a Y chromosome test.
2. This occasions the question: why do we only have transgender males competing in female events and not vice versa? No prizes for the correct answer.
