On the USCCB's Eucharistic Revival

Fr. Thomas Reese [SJ] penned an article titled The Eucharist is about More than the Real Presence. He gives critiques... meant to correct "old piety" which he says is based on "bad theology" ... He [writes]: since my critics often accuse me of heresy, before I go further, let me affirm that I believe in the real presence of Christ in the Eucharist. I just don't believe in transubstantiation because I don't believe in prime matter, substantial forms and accidents that are part of Aristotelian metaphysics... (1) The dogmas of the Real Presence and Transubstantiation are two completely different dogmas. Thus, his escape that he "believes in the real presence" is as if I consoled you about my denial of gravity by pointing to my belief in atomic theory... Real presence is about the abiding substantial presence of Christ in the Eucharist, whereas transubstantiation is about the manner of the substantial presence coming to be... the statement given by Fr. Reese is nonsensical: he wishes to deny one dogma [which] is founded on “Aristotelian metaphysics,” and, in its place, affirms a completely different dogma based on “Aristotelian metaphysics” which is actually founded on the first (for, the real presence of Christ in the Eucharist is the terminus of transubstantiation)... Did Fr. Reese save himself from falling into heresy? No... The Council of Trent states in session 13: If anyone [denies] that in the sacrament of the most holy Eucharist are contained truly, really and substantially the body and blood together with the soul and divinity of our Lord Jesus Christ, and consequently the whole Christ; but saith that He is only therein as in a sign, or in figure, or virtue, let him be anathema (can. 1). The first canon condemns those who deny the substantial presence of Christ in the eucharist and the second canon condemns those who deny transubstantiation: If anyone [says] that in the sacred and holy sacrament of the Eucharist, the substance of the bread and wine remains conjointly with the body and blood of our Lord Jesus Christ, and [denies] that wonderful and singular conversion of the whole substance of the bread into the Body and of the whole substance of the wine into the Blood...which conversion indeed the Catholic Church most aptly calls Transubstantiation; let him be anathema (can. 2)... While we heartily applaud the efforts of bishops to promote Eucharistic revival, it is indeed difficult when such men as Fr. Reese remain undisciplined.

The BBC Acknowledges the Reality of Boycott if not Gender

Bud Light has lost its position as the best-selling beer in the US after facing a boycott... Sales were down by almost a quarter... after transgender influencer... Ms [sic] Dylan Mulvaney posted an image... of a personalized can of Bud Light which the beer maker had sent her [sic]. (1)

1.Sic - "thus it was written", used to indicate that something incorrectly written is intentionally being left as it was in the original.

On the Joys of Gender

Our granddaughter, who is not yet four years of age, knows exactly what she wants... “I want to be a carrot, so people can put me in their salad.” “A pink carrot,” she added, “because pink is for girls. And I’m a girl!” It turns out she also aspires to become a cupcake... but only if the color is pink. What’s going on here besides clear and endearing evidence of a lively imagination? Should we be concerned? Might there be a need for therapy? ... If she’s twenty-something and still longs to be eaten, then maybe we should worry. But little girls identifying with carrots and cupcakes seems perfectly normal. Especially when they’re pink. That’s the telling fact, by the way. Indeed, it is the truest and most instructive aspect about the whole business: the fact that she actually knows she’s a girl, having rightly intuited the single irreducible truth... that she [is] quite irrefutably a girl. What else can that mean but that she isn’t a boy? She knows the difference... between the two. And she can be most wonderfully passionate and precise on the subject. Blue, she will repeatedly insist, is for boys, which is why she will refuse to wear anything that looks remotely blue. How many adults are there who can make that distinction? Many appear these days to be so traumatized by woke ideology that they positively shrink from the distinction. Yes, even a couple of Supreme Court Justices have failed the test.
