On the Survey of Bishops behind Traditionis Custodes (Rorate Caeli)

American journalist Diane Montagna, who has long covered the Vatican, has obtained an explosive exclusive document: the original summary and report of the Global Assessment of the Application of Summorum Pontificum, the 2007 document by Pope Benedict XVI that freed the Traditional Latin Mass. Summorum Pontificum itself foresaw a report in order to adjust any issues with implementation - and the report now obtained was generally positive. As Montagna writes: The previously undisclosed text, which forms a crucial part of the official report by the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith on its 2020 consultation of bishops concerning Summorum Pontificum, reveals that “the majority of bishops who responded to the questionnaire stated that making legislative changes to Summorum Pontificum would cause more harm than good.” The overall assessment directly contradicts, therefore, the stated rationale for imposing Traditionis Custodes and raises serious questions about its credibility.

On the Leaking of This Report (Rorate Caeli)

The leak could be strategic: For years, only the very negative feedback from the French Bishops' Conference on the survey by the then Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith on the “Old Mass” was known - completely in line with Francis. Now that a new pope is in office, who has repeatedly revived traditions abandoned by his predecessor - from the Corpus Christi procession and the handing over of the pallia to new archbishops to the traditional vacation spot - a new picture is being painted. Francis had justified his restriction of the “Old Mass” with the results of the survey he commissioned. If the official summary of the results now published by Vatican journalist Diane Montagna is genuine, he has emphasized the negative in a one-sided way: most bishops do not seem to have found fault with Benedict's liberalization. Even the German Bishops' Conference, which is not suspected of traditionalism, is said to have spoken out in favor of maintaining the coexistence of the ordinary (post-conciliar) and extraordinary (pre-conciliar) forms. The leak at a favorable time could therefore now either prepare or attempt to promote a new change to the liturgical status quo by Pope Leo XIV, depending on its origin.

Said German Bishops Weigh In (Rorate Caeli)

In a piece on the explosive revelation of the generally positive response of the world's bishops to Summorum Pontificum, the news website of the German Bishops' Conference uses the most diplomatic of languages: Pope Francis appears to have ignored the advice of the bishops previously consulted worldwide when he restricted the Traditional Latin Mass. According to documents that have now become public, the responses to a survey conducted by the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith on the implementation of the rules for the pre-conciliar liturgy put in place by Pope Benedict XVI were significantly more positive than the Pope himself presented.

God Weighs In (The Book of Exodus)

And God spoke all these words, saying:... You shall not bear false witness... You shall not utter a false report... so as to pervert justice.
