Veni Sancte Spiritus, reple tuorum corda fidelium.

From the Press

From the Address of Russian Orthodox Metropolitan Hilarion to the Anglicans - Sep 9, 2010

Why do the Churches, both East and West, still remember the Fathers of [the] Councils with such gratitude... revered... as "Doctors of the Church"? Because throughout the ages the Church believed it to be her principal task to safeguard the truth. Her foremost heroes were those confessors of the faith who asserted orthodox doctrine and countered heresies in the face of new trends and theological and political innovations...

Today the notion of heresy, while present in church vocabulary, is manifestly absent from the vocabulary of contemporary politically-correct theology, a theology which prefers to refer to "pluralism" and to speak of admissible and legitimate differences... (1)

[Presently], there is a multitude of communities [claiming] to be a Church even though approaches to doctrinal, ecclesiological and ethical issues among them often differ radically... Some Christian leaders, for example, tell us that marriage between a man and a woman is no longer the only way of building a Christian family: there are other models and the Church should [be] "inclusive" to recognize alternative behavioral standards and [bless] them. (2)

Some try to persuade us that human life is no longer an absolute value; that it can be terminated in a mother's womb or that one can terminate one's life at will. Christian "traditionalists" are being asked to reconsider their views under the slogan of keeping abreast with modernity. (3)

The dialogue [between Orthodox and Anglican] is doomed to closure if the unrestrained liberalization of Christian values continues...

The first difficulties... emerged [when Anglicans] agreed to "ordain" women to the priesthood... [a] decision contradicting the tradition of the Early Church... [a decision] followed by discussions on the female "episcopate"... [a] decision [which] "has considerably complicated dialogue with the Anglicans for Orthodox Christians" and "has taken Anglicanism farther away from the Orthodox Church and contributed to further division in Christendom as a whole..."

The [Orthodox] were struck by the conviction expressed... that even if the female episcopate was introduced, ecumenical contacts with the Roman Catholic and the Orthodox Churches would not come to an end. What made the authors of these documents so certain? ... I can say with certainty that the introduction of the female episcopate excludes even a theoretical possibility for the Orthodox to recognize the apostolic continuity of the Anglican hierarchy.

Some Protestant and Anglican churches have repudiated basic Christian moral values by giving a public blessing to same-sex unions and ordaining homosexuals as priests and bishops. Many Protestant and Anglican communities refuse to preach Christian moral values in secular society and prefer to adjust to worldly standards.

Our Church must sever its relations with those churches and communities which trample on the principles of Christian ethics and traditional morals. Here we uphold a firm stand based on Holy Scripture. (4)

1. A Synodal theology?
2. James Martin and being "differently" ordered as opposed to intrinsically disordered? Fiducia Supplicans?
3. That is, the Modernists impose their morality.
4. Could not the Vatican have made a similar statement rather than feting Sarah Mullalley - the Archbishette of Canterbury - as though she was a real cleric heading a real Church?
