From the Press

On the Octave of Pentecost (Gregory DiPippo, NLM)

It has often been claimed that one of the triumphs of the post-Conciliar reform was to abolish the octave of Pentecost and “restore” the original character of the Easter season as a single great feast of fifty days... Bugnini writes: “The Easter season lasts fifty days, beginning with the Easter Vigil and ending with Pentecost Sunday... For this reason, the octave of Pentecost, which was added to the fifty days of Easter in the sixth century, has been abolished.”

This trope about the supposed fifty days of Easter was very convenient to the reformers’ mindset. It posits that everyone had always been stupidly wrong about the liturgy for well over a millennium, wantonly discarding a part of the Church's ancient and "original" tradition to no good purpose...

My idea is that each day of the octave represents one of the seven Sacraments...

When Our Lord rose from the dead and appeared to the disciples, they did not immediately rush out into the streets to proclaim [it]. The Roman liturgy reflects this in the Gospel readings for Easter; neither at the Vigil nor on the feast does [the Lord] appear in person...

The forty days from Easter to Ascension inclusive represent the period [described] at the beginning of Acts: "(Jesus) showed himself alive after his passion... appearing to them for forty days, and ... commanded them, that they should ... wait for the promise of the Father... You shall be baptized with the Holy Ghost, not many days hence," ... represented by the pause between Ascension and Pentecost. It is only at the latter feast... that the public mission of the Church begins...

Therefore, the seven days of Pentecost represent something substantially different from Easter, namely, the point at which the Church begins to fulfill the Great Commission, making disciples of all nations... She begins to live the life of grace, engendered and nourished by the Sacraments, the means by which She will carry forth the preaching of the Faith from the first Pentecost to the end of the world, a period represented in the liturgy by the long haul of weeks... from Pentecost until Advent, which begins with a Gospel about the end of the world.

Within the first week of this period, the seven Masses of the Pentecost octave represent these means, the seven Sacraments...

Pentecost Sunday... represents Confirmation, the coming of the Holy Spirit upon the individual believer...

The Mass of Pentecost Monday represents Confession, stated in the Epistle... in which St Peter says, "To (Jesus Christ) all the prophets give testimony, that by his name all who believe in him receive remission of sins." The Gospel speaks clearly of sin and the need for repentance, confession and forgiveness...

The Mass of Pentecost Tuesday also represents Baptism, the entry into life as a member of Christ's mystical body... In the Gospel, Jesus proclaims, "I am the door. By me, if any man enter in, he shall be saved..." The Epistle unites Baptism to Confirmation as it tells of what Peter and John did in Samaria. "They were only baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Then (the Apostles) laid their hands upon them, and they received the Holy Spirit."

The Mass of Ember Wednesday... the Gospel is taken from the Eucharistic discourse of John 6... The Eucharist is centrally placed in the middle of the week as the greatest of the Sacraments...

The Gospel of the Mass of Ember Friday [describes] the healing of the paralytic whose friends lower him through the roof into the house where the Lord is teaching. This represents the last rites and the Anointing of the Sick, even though such healing is also mentioned the previous day...

Lastly, the Mass of Ember Saturday represents Marriage, since the Gospel... begins with the healing of St Peter's mother-in-law.
